A solar panel is a device that helps convert sunlight into electricity. The pros of using solar panels include a lower carbon footprint, lower electric bills, potentially higher home value and tax credits. The cons include high initial costs, specific roof requirements, possible higher property.

With current tax credits and incentives, the average payback period for solar panels is between six and 10 years. In other words, you can recoup the money spent on solar panels through electricity cost savings within about one decade—and then benefit from more savings after that. However, solar.

Installing solar panels in your home has never been easier or cheaper. But is it the right time -- and the correct choice -- for your home?

Solar energy and panels have many pros, from the obvious benefits of saving on energy costs to the incentives that help lower the cost and maximize your.

Is going solar really worth it?

Hello, I recently had a consultation for going solar since my home is a good candidate ( south facing, simple roof full sun ). They offer 0 down and 25 years financing which would lower my current electric bill to a certain amount each month and then after the 25.

Investing in solar panels often can be worth the cost, especially if you're planning for the long term. It depends on how much energy you use and how much sun you get. We'll show you how an average energy user in the US would fare, and how to do the math for your own situation. More homeowners are.
